Artist of the Month:

Zara Zannettino

“As a former research scientist in Virology and Transplantation Immunology, my awe of the natural world continues to inspire my artistic work which predominantly utilises improvisational fabric collage and detailed stitching on stretched canvas. Other techniques used include fabric dyeing, painting, stencilling, dye-discharge and beading.

This career change is now backed by 20 years of experience in creating traditional patchwork quilts and fabric/textile wall art. My body of work is seen in private commissions, consignments, competitions and exhibitions. I value my various associations with quilting groups, and have also been a quilt valuer and textile teacher.

My current style and process aims to highlight details or subject matter that I feel warrant closer appreciation or are ‘Worthy of Wonder’, aiming to make the viewer think ‘W.O.W!’ due to either the design, the artist statement behind the inspiration or even the multi-layered and textured construction process itself. Often this work is derived from daily walks, my photography or from the natural development of a series of studio experimentation projects. As such my works are unique, one-off designs that aren’t repeated, as reflected in my trading name Funky-One-Off Designs. I hope you enjoy viewing my progress to date.”
