Brooke Adkins
Ceramics

"The meaning of BLISS - complete happiness; great joy.

Welcome to Bliss Ceramics. I began making ceramics in 2015, when I joined Studio Potters (SA) as a student. Each one of my pieces has been lovingly crafted with a focus on uniqueness and originality.

All work is hand-formed, carefully dried, then fired. Then it is glazed and re-fired, this time to 1220 degrees celsius. Some pieces have real gold added to them, and these go through a further firing. All work is done in my studio.

I use an array of stoneware clays for their strength and durability. Each clay type has a different personality and brings different qualities to the pieces.

Porcelain is fine, super smooth and pairs nicely with gold lustre, whilst the grey speckled clay that I also love gives a slightly rustic, earthy feel.

Handbuilding is my preferred method. It is a much slower process than using a potters wheel; yet for me, much more rewarding.

Creating ceramics has brought me great joy and purpose. I wish you 'Bliss' and I hope to share mine with you, through ceramics."

Joy Harvey
Textiles/Wall Art

"Art making has been a passion since my childhood in New Zealand, through study in the UK, to establishing myself as an artist here in Adelaide.

The source of inspiration for my current work is the urban life/natural environment relationship. Latterly that theme has become focused on the Burnside area and more specifically the trees residing in my own garden.

During studies towards a Fine Arts degree, I discovered that 'textiles' was my medium of choice. My working practise involves photography for reference then drawing, before developing a concept into layers of fabric and thread. Recently I've introduced printmaking and stitch on paper to my skill set as well.

I currently work from my home studio, have participated in numerous exhibitions in South Australia, been a member of the T'Arts Collective, and am a Fellow of the Royal Society of Arts (SA)."
