As part of this Pepper Street is very proud to be showing The Windswept Farm by Dorrit Black, generously provided on loan by a local resident. The Pepper Street coffee shop was named after Dorrit Black in 2001 in recognition of the important contribution made to the development of Australian modernist art, by a Magill based artist. The Pepper Street arts library book Dorrit Black by Tracey Lock-Weir will be on show for on-site viewing during this exhibition, for those who would like to read more about Dorrit - perhaps while stopping for some morning or afternoon tea in her namesake coffee shop! Apple muffins will be on special as a fun 'ode' to Dorrit Black's favourite recipe 'Hulda's Apple Cake'. A copy of the original recipe provided by a family member of Dorrit Black will also be on show in the coffee shop. Pictured here is a sneak peak of the artists exhibiting in the show.

Exhibition concludes on Friday 12 February at 4 pm.
