Ingroup is a collective of five artists who originally connected through study at the Adelaide Central School of Art. While each artist works independently they come together regularly for collaboration, inspiration, encouragement and support. The group shares a passion for creativity, experimentation and fine art but is diverse in oeuvre, style and medium.

This exhibition draws inspiration from the concept of 'inscape' derived by the poet Gerard Manley Hopkins. Hopkins used the term 'inscape' to mean the unified complex of characteristics that give each thing its uniqueness and that differentiate it from other things. In accord with the personal stance, style and approach of each artist, be it representational, conceptual, abstracted or expressive; the works reflect on this theme and come together as a whole through exploration of uniqueness and unexpected beauty in the ordinary.

Maggie Cecchin, Contemplation

Inscape presents an exciting and diverse collection of paintings complemented by hand made papier mâché bowls. The works include painterly depictions of alluring interiors in oil by Hannah Bushaway; Maggie Cecchin's ephemeral representations; Rae Kempe's contemplative images; luscious culinary delights in pastels by Sue Colyer; and richly coloured intriguing figurative works in acrylic by Helen Sidoryn.

Works by Dorothy "Dot" Angus - A Retrospective (22/2/1936 - 19/1/2012)

This showcase has been assembled by the Fantastic Fabric Friends textile group, as a tribute to Dot.

Dot's inspiration came from a variety of sources, including fond memories of her homeland (Scotland), her childhood experiences with her twin sister whom she revered, and her gentle husband who encouraged and supported her creativity.

We remember Dot's work for her fine detail and exquisite embroidery, her re-creation of nature - particularly trees and their barks, and the uniqueness of her book covers, boxes and dolls. Each artwork reflected her modesty and humility... "It's just a little piece" she would say... and her wonderful sense of humour. Being prepared to experiment in various mediums, Dot achieved amazing results over her lifetime as an artist.

Generous to a fault, Dot did not hesitate to support the textile artists of the future and other artists, exhibiting with them and giving away many of her workbooks and samplers, in particular to Marden Senior College where she studied.

We hope you enjoy this showcase in its tribute to a wonderful artist and person.

From her Fantastic Fabric Friends: Jenny, Christine, Natalie, Karlyn and Roni

All works are on loan from the owners and are not for sale.

Samantha Goodburn Textiles

"I have been playing and exploring with textiles for about eight years, creating and making free form, hand-dyed, hand-spun garments for family and friends, which then extended to discovering wet felting with its endless possibilities and sculptural beauty. I am inspired by the rich textures and colour of wool felt, and also the practicality and beauty to be found in wearable felt. Hats and head adornments were my initial interest, and then jackets, vests, scarves, bags, and booties have come since. My inspiration comes from nature and also the love of what people wear - as an expression of their individuality. That has always fascinated me.

I love the element of the unexpected, working with wet felting - the wool often takes you in directions you hadn't intended to go - the form reveals itself through the blending of colours and the manipulation of the fibres as they begin that mysterious process called felting. Continuously learning through each item I individually create, trying new ways, new forms, different colours, I wish to extend the boundaries of my own comfort zone - pushing the limits of what I can do and manifest. I work from home at the kitchen table in Mylor in the Adelaide Hills, when I can find the space from an otherwise full life of parenting and my other vocation, practising and teaching yoga. I have my work at selected outlets in Adelaide and Sydney, and run some markets. I don't know where this is taking me but I'm happy taking the ride."
